Pope Prefers Long Debates To Timetable

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI has decided that freedom of debate is more important than strict adherence to the timetable at the Ecumenical Council.

As a result, the council will continue debate next week on a subject that many delegates are heartily tired of: the authority of bishops.

The question is whether bishops as a body share responsibility with the Pope for the government and teaching of the Roman Catholic Church.

To a layman, this may not sound like a terribly important issue — certainly not one that would require two weeks of debate by 2,300 cardinals, archbishops and bishops from all parts of the world.

There is very little doubt that the council eventually will approve the idea of decentralization by an overwhelming majority.

Debate since the second council session opened Sept. 29 has made clear that the only real issue is exactly how the doctrine will be worked.

Many bishops had hoped that

Good Evening!

Cold war thaw getting chilly.

Berlin incident—Reds halting U. S. military convoys on the autobahn and blocking their entry into the city—a serious one and Secretary of State Rusk wastes no time in protesting to the Kremlin.

In view of all of the sweetness and light from Moscow in recent months you nearly had to expect the Communies to get irritating somewhere along the line. And this should be another reminder to the U. S. that the Soviet Union isn't ready by any means to settle down and become a respectable member of the global family.

New Jersey decides to build access ramps to the Turnpike from Route 130 at Florence and good news it is.

You know, the Courier-Times suggested just such action a half dozen years ago and we're mighty glad the Jersey officials have finally made up their minds. This will do much to take the pressure off of the Burlington-Bristol bridge jam-up practically every evening.

South Philadelphia continues to be plagued with racial strife.

The big town will continue to have its troubles in this regard until it begins trying to intelligently handle them. And one way to handle them would be an indiscriminate crackdown on the irresponsible elements causing them in the first place.

You've simply got to say it again: perfect autumn weather.

Mother Nature's foliage artistry rarely prettier and, for heaven's sake, take a few hours for a glimpse around the hinterlands.

Also a perfect weekend for the footballers.

Which reminds us, of course, that Penn State should have no trouble with Army, that Boston College should humiliate Villanova, that Princeton should trounce Penn. and—tomorrow—the Redskins should scalp the Eagles.

Speeding motorists should remember that it's better to be a little late down here than too early up there.

You can always spot the well-informed man. His views are usually the same as yours.

Go to church tomorrow.

RUSSIAN BLOCKADE RENEWS WAR OF NERVES ON BERLIN

71 Sit-Ins Arrested In Bias Protests

By United Press International

Civil rights demonstrations brought mass arrests yesterday in Chicago and St. Louis but Birmingham, Ala., tried to avoid such disorder.

Police broke up two sit-in demonstrations in the Chicago Board of Education Building and hauled 41 demonstrators to the police station. The sit-ins are aimed at forcing the resignation of School Supt. Benjamin C. Willis, a target of civil rights groups who claim there is "de facto" segregation in Chicago city schools.

Thirty persons, including two aldermen and a state representative, were picked up by police during a demonstration at a St. Louis Bank. Demonstrators, trying to force the bank to hire Negro workers, entered the bank in defiance of a court restraining order.

At Birmingham, a city-appointed biracial committee recommended that Mayor Albert Boutwell announce the city will employ Negro policemen. Negro leaders, including Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., have demanded that 25 Negro policemen be hired within two weeks or massive racial demonstrations will be resumed.

Bucks County District Attorney Paul R. Beckert may get another crack at a Bucks judgeship, it was learned last night.

Diners Hear Bucks 'Virile'

State Attorney General Walter E. Alessandrini last night decried Bucks County as a "virile county" while citing its industrial growth and increase in population.

Speaking at the Washington Crossing Inn before 159 members of the GOP Century Club, Alessandrini said that Bucks' "tremendous upsurge can't be said of other counties in this state." "You don't have your young people leaving as in some other counties," he said.

The diminutive, energetic official said that the creation of an addition Common Pleas

Priest Held In Siberia 20 Yrs., Mass. Man Freed By Russians

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Roman Catholic priest, imprisoned more than 20 years in the Soviet Union, and a young university graduate student returned from Russia today for a joyful reunion with their families after being exchanged for two accused Soviet spies.

The Rev. Walter Ciszak, 58 who vanished in Russia about 1940, and Marvin W. Makinen, 24, arrested while touring the Soviet Union in 1961, landed here at 6:56 a.m. EDT on a flight from London.

They walked quickly past a crowd of newsmen into the terminal at Idlewild Airport and met relatives and friends, many of whom feared they would never see them again.

Father Ciszak of Shenandoah, Pa., and Makinen, of Ashburnham, Mass., talked quietly with their relatives inside the building. They expressed no emotion upon first leaving the four-engine turbo prop plane, and went directly to the terminal, keeping their eyes straight ahead.

The two were swapped Friday for Ivan Egorov, a Soviet employee of the United Nations, and his wife, Aleksandra, who were arrested in their apartment here in Queens and charged with espionage.

(The Egorovs arrived in Copenhagen today aboard a Scandinavian airliner. They were scheduled to leave for Moscow later in the day aboard a Soviet plane.)

Couple Breaks Down At the reunion, both his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Makinen, burst into tears. His father was so overcome he had to sit down. Young Makinen, however, remained calm and somewhat placid in appearance throughout the reunion and a subsequent news conference.

But when he met his 8-year-old stepsister, Kathy, outside at the family car, he broke down. Sobbing, he hugged and kissed her repeatedly.

Shortly before, while still composed, Makinen said the first thing he wanted to do was "get a good rest and a sauna (steam-bath)."

During the news conference, he refused to discuss the aspects of his arrests and imprisonment which began in July, 1961. The family attorney, Oliver S. Allen, of Boston, who acted for the Makinens in their efforts to bring their son's freedom, said, however, "much of the information is already public. We cannot reveal anymore."

Gets Frequent Letters Allen said Makinen had been confined in Vladimir, about 100 miles from Moscow, and that the family had been able to write him regularly and "freely until recently, when we were only allowed to write one letter a month."

Makinen's parents described their son's return "like a dream come true." His mother added,

Westinghouse Talks Three Unions, Firm Race Pact Deadline

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Westinghouse Electric Corp. today moved into weekend bargaining sessions with three unions in an attempt to reach an agreement before contracts run out at midnight Monday.

Neither side expressed optimism.

The International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) and the United Electrical Workers (UE) reported Friday no progress had been made.

The third union, the Federation of Westinghouse Independent Salaried Unions, said substantial progress had been made since the company made its original offer Sept. 23.

The IUE, which represents 36,000 workers in 28 Westinghouse plants, has scheduled a meeting of its Westinghouse Conference Board for 10 a.m. Monday to determine whether to stage a walk-out at midnight, when the other two unions also will be free to strike.

The three unions also have the option of continuing negotiations under an extension of the current contract.

Convoy Count Issue

BERLIN (UPI) — The United States and Russia were locked today in an undeclared "war of nerves" created by a new Soviet blockade of U. S. military traffic between Berlin and the West.

The Russians have been playing cat-and-mouse with an 18-vehicle U. S. convoy in Communist held East Germany for nearly 48 hours, Friday, a dozen Soviet armored cars blocking the American convoy completely closed one lane of the principal superhighway to the West at the Berlin border.

The United States has delivered a strong protest against the new blockade to the Kremlin, and Britain and France were expected to join in a further protest to the Russians.

The immediate issue at stake is the refusal of U. S. authorities, on orders from Washington, to allow the 61 soldiers in the convoy to leave their vehicles so the Russians can count them. Underlying this, however, is the basic Western refusal to submit to Russian control of the lifeline routes to Berlin.

Head Count Issue Large U. S. convoys submit voluntarily to a Soviet head count as a matter of routine. Four convoys, each of more than 20 vehicles, have done so during the current dispute and have been passed without incident.

U. S. officials see no reason, however, why a convoy as small as the one involved in today's dispute should undergo a head count, and they are refusing to let the Russians dictate a decision.

The U. S. and Russian soldiers

Delaware Philharmonic All New Arrangements For Orchestra Debut

Music enthusiasts who attend the opening tomorrow of the tenth anniversary season of the Delaware Philharmonic Orchestra will find new seating arrangements, sound shell and musical program.
The concert, at Woodrow Wilson High School auditorium, begins at 3 p.m.
The concert features the Kalevsky Second Piano Concerto with Carole-Anne Craigie Mochernuk as soloist, and Mozart's Symphony No. 41, the so-called "Jupiter."
Other works to be performed include the Masquerade Suite of Khachaturian and the Toccata by Frescobaldi.
Almost 900 red covers were placed on the seats of the auditorium, home of the orchestra.
Portable Sections
The portable sections of a new sound shell also can be used in the recently begun summer starlight concerts of the orchestra. The sections can be used as panels, as at Lincoln Center, New York, or as a solid sounding board.
Meanwhile, Mrs. Graham Calum Jr., 46 Forsythia Drive, North, Levittown, and other officers of the newly formed Delaware Valley Symphony Association mailed the last of 500 formal invitations to an organization meeting scheduled Oct. 28. The new organization is expected to bring together various service clubs, women's clubs in support of the orchestra and related cultural activities.
2,000 Brochures
More than 2,000 announcement brochures describing the orchestra's birthday year activities were mailed out earlier in the week.
Tickets for the season and for the single performance will be available at the door.
Arrangements have been made for refreshments at intermission and a tea served following the concert, to which all members of the audience are invited.
Miss Mochernuk is a product of the Royal Conservatory at Toronto and more recently a student of Madame Lhevinne of New York. She is a regular recitalist over New York radio station WNYC, a resident of Plainfield, N.J., and a winner in competition sponsored by the Canadian Broadcasting Co.
Last May she appeared in recital at Town Hall in New York as award winner of the New York Madrigal Society's annual competition.

Goldwater Talks Like A Candidate

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) - Senator Barry Goldwater, talking like a candidate but denying he is one, said Friday President Kennedy has us "standing paralyzed in Berlin, cross-eyed in Paris and blind in Cuba."
Only hours before his speech to the convention of the Military Order of the World Wars in San Antonio, Goldwater said in Dallas that he has not yet decided whether to seek the Republican presidential nomination, no matter what his backers may say.
But his San Antonio speech, basically an attack on the Kennedy administration, sounded otherwise.
He called the administration's foreign policy the "most disastrous in the nation's history," a policy that "has split the greatest alliance in free world history - NATO - into factions and inaction."

Priest Released

"I always knew he'd come back - sooner or later."
The elder Makinen said he had "never lost faith and hope that my son would someday come back home." He said he and his wife's fight to bring about the return "has been long and hard and at times seemed hopeless."
Father Ciszek was the first off the London-to-New York plane. He was wearing a bright green, parka-like overcoat over his civilian garb. Makinen wore a fur-lined, hooded knee-length coat.
The trade was negotiated by American and Soviet diplomats in Washington, officials said. It was the first such agreement since the United States traded top Soviet spy Rudolf Abel for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers on Feb. 10, 1962.

Father Ciszek's relatives, who had not heard from him for more than two decades and for years had believed him dead, were overjoyed at the news of his release.
"The first thing I did was scream - it's Walter," Mrs. Loretta Balczuk, one of his six sisters, said at Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Balczuk said he may arrive in time to attend the wedding later in the day of one of her three children, Theresa, 21, a niece whom he never has seen. The bride said:
"O, God, we've been waiting all these years. Oh, I'd like him to be here (for the marriage) . . . isn't that the most wonderful wedding gift of all?"

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. David J. Hart, pastor of Immaculate Conception church in Hartford, said: "If he arrives in time, we would be glad to give him permission (to officiate at the ceremony). It would be wonderful."
In Westminster, Mass., Makinen's sister, Mrs. Carroll H. Arnold, said she was writing him a letter when she heard a television report that he had been released. "So this is certainly news to us, wonderful news," she said. "Our many, many prayers have been answered."

Soviets Released

Egorov, 41, and his 33-year-old wife were released from jail and taken immediately to Idlewild for the trip home. They took off Friday night for Copenhagen, where they were to board a Soviet plane for the return to Moscow.
The unexpected exchange had precedents beyond the Abel-Powers deal.

Edwin O. Guthman, Justice Department information officer, revealed that two Russians were freed in February, 1961, following the release of American RB47s fliers who had been downed in the Soviet Union.
Guthman said the two, Igor Yakovlevich and Willie Hirsch, both of whom had been charged with spying for Russia, were freed about a month after the two U.S. fliers were returned to this country. President Kennedy announced the release of the two fliers shortly after he took office.

Goes To Poland

Mrs. Helen Gearhart of Washington, D.C., another one of the priest's sisters, said Father Ciszek, a Jesuit, was ordained in Rome in 1937 and the next year was assigned to a seminary in Poland, near the Russian border.
Mrs. Gearhart said his family last heard from him in 1939, and that in 1940 one of his superiors reported "the Bolsheviks" had taken him.
Mrs. Balczuk said that the next time they heard from him was in 1955 when another sister received a brief note, bearing an address within the Soviet Union, that read:
"You may have forgotten me or you may have taken me for dead. I am alive. If you write to this address, I'll reply."

Receiving the note was Sister Mary Evangeline, mother provincial of the Catholic order of Bernadine Sisters at Reading, Pa.
It was in 1955 that the federal government learned that Father Ciszek was being held, though the Russians did not admit this until the next year.
Father Ciszek was arrested shortly after he arrived in the Soviet Union sometime prior to March, 1940. Originally he was accused of engaging in intelligence activities, and using a Soviet passport listing his name as Lapinski. He spent most of his time in Siberia.

Gets Two Years
Makinen, who lived with his father, William J. Makinen, in Ashburnham, had been sentenced to two years confinement plus six years at hard labor by the Russians.

He was charged with collecting "intelligence information" while driving through Hungary, Czechoslovakia and the Ukraine. Soviet agents said he was arrested "while taking pictures of a military object."
The U.S. Embassy in Moscow first learned of this on Sept. 4, 1961, when the Soviet Foreign Ministry reported that he had been arrested two months before at Kiev in the Ukraine.

Chilled Driver Hits Pole

If Daniel Di Lorenzo, 5, of Philadelphia finds the atmosphere around home a bit chilly for the next few days, it will be nothing compared to the chill he gave his stepfather yesterday.

The stepfather, Frederick Friess, 39, was driving through Pennel. Daniel, in the back seat, was eating a popsicle.

The popsicle came in contact with the back of Friess' neck. Friess jumped, and the car plowed into a utility pole, according to Pennel police.

The driver was treated for a laceration of the lip at Lower Bucks Hospital and released.

Dog Sought In Child Bite

Two desperate Levittown parents today appealed for help in finding a small black and white mongrel that bit their 22-month-old daughter on Wednesday afternoon in a Five Points food market.

If the dog is not located soon, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis P. Dorsey, of 37 Crown Road, Cobalt Ridge, will have to take the child, Jean Kristen Dorsey, for rabies shots, a very painful process.

Bristol Township and Lower Madefield Township police are assisting in the search.

Dorsey said a woman brought the dog into the store between 4 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. She turned it over to a boy standing near the door to watch while she shopped.

When the Dorsey child entered, the dog leaped and bit her, inflicting puncture wounds of the face. The tot required hospital treatment.

Dorsey said the woman, described as middle-aged, slight and graying, gave a false name and address to the store manager. The information was traced to a vacant lot in Lower Makefield, it was reported.

She apparently lived within walking distance of the shopping center. The store manager knew her by sight, but could not identify her, Dorsey said.

If found the dog will be put under observation for 10 days to ascertain whether it is infected with rabies.

Penn Students Reject Wallace

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - Concern over possible "civil disorder" prompted a student organization at the University of Pennsylvania Friday to cancel an invitation for Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama to address the group Nov. 6.

The law school forum wrote Wallace that the invitation was being withdrawn "not because we agree or disagree with your views" but because of events in Birmingham "and their impact on Philadelphia."

Expressing regret, the letter said the decision was solely that of a forum committee composed of five students.

Rocky, Barry Start 'Tours'

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) - The two leading unannounced candidates for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination set out to win the West today.

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller scheduled a 4 p.m. EDT appearance before the 13-state Western Republican Conference to make what was termed an "important" speech.

Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, the front-runner, is to arrive in this college community near the Pacific Coast at 8 p.m. EDT. He speaks in the late evening to the same group.

Rockefeller arrived Friday night to see an airport crowd estimated by police at 450, and seemed cheered by his reception.

"Gee, I've got a lot of friends here," he told Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield, who greeted him on his arrival in a privately chartered jet.

When the smiling Rockefeller waved to the crowd from the steps of the plane, there were no cheers. Later, however, when the governor stepped to an improvised stand to speak, the crowd cheered lustily.

Runaway Truck Misses Youth

A trailer truck, southbound on Route 13, Bristol Township, leaped the medial strip, crossed the highway, and smashed into a traffic signal pole about 10:50 this morning. The accident happened at the corner of Green Lane.

No one was injured. A youth, Al Van Cleve, of 11 Green Lane, saw the truck hurtling toward him and pedaled out of the way just in time. Witnesses said the truck missed the boy by about five feet.

The truck driver told police his brakes locked as he approached the intersection.

A utility wire was loosened by the impact and hung low over the intersection. The traffic signal pole was bent almost double.

Penn Students Reject Wallace

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - Concern over possible "civil disorder" prompted a student organization at the University of Pennsylvania Friday to cancel an invitation for Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama to address the group Nov. 6.

The law school forum wrote Wallace that the invitation was being withdrawn "not because we agree or disagree with your views" but because of events in Birmingham "and their impact on Philadelphia."

Expressing regret, the letter said the decision was solely that of a forum committee composed of five students.
